Central Coast Seafood is a fast growing and progressive seafood distributor in California with an efficient network that services retailers and restaurants from Ventura County in the south, to the greater San Francisco Bay area in the north. They are extremely committed to promoting the sale of sustainable products while reducing dependency on unsustainable products. They are also strong supporters of California coast fishing communities through innovative relationships that expand markets while maintaining commitments to sound stock management.

“Central Coast Seafood has long been a supporter of sustainable seafood and responsible environmental business practices. Being actively involved in the fisheries reform project that has taken place in Morro Bay, we’ve had firsthand experience in the need for responsible fisheries management to ensure the health and longevity of our local fish for generations to come...”
